6. the house in "LES CHARMETTES"

Located in the valley of Les Charmettes, the house where Jean-Jacques Rousseau and Madame de Warens spent their summers between 1736 and 1742 is definitely worth visiting!

It was an important place which profoundly changed the personality of the great writer of the Lumières movement. The house has retained all its character and will take you travelling back to the 18th century.

« We settled in Les Charmettes, on Monsieur Conzié's land, on the outskirts of Chambéry, but remote and secluded enough to be miles away. The house was very habitable. A terraced garden in the front, with a vine above, and facing a little chesnut wood, and a fountain nearby »
